CRAIGHEAD HOUSE

NOVEMBER 2022 Edition

The fall harvest is in full swing and November marks the end of Craighead House's 2022 schedule. Before we get to that, let's recap what happened in October.

The bluegrass concert scheduled for October 2 was postponed due to rains from Hurricane Ian. It will be rescheduled for some time in the spring.

The other October event was the celebration of Night Creatures featuring Zoo America. This was a popular event as was last year's event with Ryan the Bug Man. Also appearing was Andy Dapkins who gave an audiovisual presentation regarding owls. In between presentations, visitors interacted with the several hands-on activities Prof. Sarah Fischer prepared for them. Those staying to the end of the program were rewarded with a nightcap added this year by Andy Dapkins. He led visitors around the meadow searching for owls well after dark. Although Andy let off with calls for several different types of owl from his magic box, none appeared. However, some geese were sighted.
